BORERS AND ROOT ROT

Borers and root rot seem to be the important things that one has to contend with. I find that eternal vigilance will keep them both in check. Watch the foliage, beginning the first of July, or earlier in some sections, and where you see a leaf that looks slimy or the edges notched, look out for borers, and get an old glove and squeeze the leaf up and down between thumb and finger.

To check root rot, cut out rotted part and rub wound with Calogreen.

If you raise seeds of Iris, you will know that the flowers have to be bagged soon after pollinating, to prevent the verbena fly from stinging their eggs into the new-forming seed pod, where they hatch out little larvae (Maggots), that eat up all of the young seeds. The scars on the pods where they have been stung are plainly discernible, when fully developed, and if scraped with a sharp pen knife and a little Calogreen rubbed into the wound, that will be the finish of Mr. Maggot. It is said that Calogreen is also effective for preventing rot, but for treating seed pods I believe ordinary calomel would be just as effective. This treatment does away with bagging.

TALL BEARDED IRIS

Sunnyside Gardens' Introductions FOR 1939

BEVERLY—(Gage-Lapham, 1939). A free flowering garden type, strong grower. Blooms of good size with closed standards and broad, well rounded flowers. Fair substance and resistance. The color which is unusual and distinctive is PURPLISH VINACEOUS, a decidedly pink effect of self-coloring edged and flushed with golden brown. Heavy yellow beard, slight golded reticulations. Styles light yellow, shaded Purplish Vinaceous. Fair branching, mildly fragrant. 32 inches. Late. Net$10.00

CRIMSON SUN—(Gage-Lapham, 1939). Standards and falls rich crimson, the falls edged a lighter tone. Strong and very well branched stalk. Standards closed, broad and rather short. Falls broad and well rounded, flaring. Moderate yellow beard; heavy substance, mild fragrance. Very slight reticulation. 5 inch blooms. Midseason. 34 inches$5.00

DAMERINE—(An Indian chief), (Gage, 1939). A large dark red self with wide domed standards and wide flaring falls. Splendid substance and velvety texture; deep yellow beard. Very fragrant. Height 36 inches. Midseason ..$5.00

RED BONNET—(Gage, 1939). This is a dark red self. The flowers are large, of fine form with wide standards and falls. Standards are domed, closed, and the falls are flaring. Fair branching, smooth texture, fairly early and very fragrant. I had never seen a red iris that will compare with RED BONNET for purity of its red color. Probably the reddest iris in commerce today, and invaluable for breeding reds, its progeny showing variety of tones from crimson to near pink. Height 36 inches. Net..$5.00

THELMA JEAN—(Albert E. Peck, 1939). Here is a most distinctive color in irises; a rich Petunia-Violet self. Very large flowers with heavy substance, resistant to rain, wind and torrid sun, the flowers remaining fresh for four days after the buds open. Fair branching and smooth texture. A strong grower. Standards erect, cupped; falls hanging, drooping. Very early blooming; orange beard. Height 34 inches,

A Select List of Choice Irises

INCLUDING

Recent Introductions

- AIRY DREAM—(Stuart, 1932). Clear, cool orchid pink in color35c
- ALICE HARDING—(Cayeux). A soft yellow of Princess Beatrice form. A. M., A. I. S., 1937. $2.00
- ALLUMEUSE—(Gage, 1938). This is the most gorgeous colored iris I have ever selected from my seed beds of many thousands. Its one fault is poor branching, but its glittering and brilliant color blending is so striking that this fault is overlooked when one sees the beauty of the flower itself. The standards are Wisteria Violet (blush) yellow at the base. The falls are semi-flaring, a blending of Pansy Violet (reddish) and Raisin Purple (reddish) with a golden orange beard. The substance is extra heavy with velvety texture. Large flowers of excellent form and free blooming. Strong grower and medium increaser. Midseason. 45 inches. H. M., A. I. S., 1938. Net$8.00
